

Steven Buonanotte is seasoned composer, producer, and audio engineer with over 22 years in the entertainment industry. In his private multitrack production facility located in the suburbs of New York City, Steve can be found working on music for some of today's hottest artists, television shows, and events as well as music for corporations and software developers.

An in-demand talent, he has worked on music with artists such as The Bacon Brothers, John Bucchino, and Philippe Quint. His television work includes Dancing with the Stars, Good Morning America, Pawn Stars and Getting to Know the Bronx which was nominated for two EMMYs. Steve has also created music for such corporations as The Ford Motor Company, Thermo Fischer, and The Coughlin Group.

Not one to sit idle, Steve has recently spread his wings as an educator, teaching audio production at The New School and Lehman College where he is also a staff audio and post production engineer. When not creating music, Steve enjoys spending time with his family, photography and mountain biking.
